Mr. Kobashigawa says goodby to the Mighty Seniors of '67

With each passing year the covetted title of "the mighty seniors" is passed on to another group of students. How appropriately the title fits the group doesn't matter. Strong, feeble or weak, they'd still be called "mighty seniors", so who cares? Only the seniors, of course the seniors, of course. The most important time of a "mighty senior's" life is when he sheds the title not when he receivee it. With the shedding of the title is commencement.

With commencement, he becomes a freshman in the way of life, freshman in pursuit of

Only the educated can decide their destiny; only the wise can follow it; only the good can attain it.

Happiness must be shared to be enjoyed.

higher education, freshman in business enterprises, and freshman in "this" and "that".

In a very few days the "mighty seniors" of 1967 will be graduating. Although you will be "freshmen" in more ways than one, the wisdom and youth, vigor, and vitality you possess are your assets. Wise application of your assets no doubt, will double your return. I hope your years at Castle have taught you in some measure how to apply your assets to the fullest extent.

I bid you farewell at this time of parting, hoping hopefully that we meet again.

May you all have much luck and happiness!

Sincerely,

Mr. Kobashigawa

Class of 1967 prepares to enter the adult world

On June 10, 1967, seniors of Castle High School graduated.

The commencement exercises were held on the Castle field. The services began at

The services began at 5:30 when the processional was played. The invocation was given by Reverend Colson, which was followed by the

Counselor bids aloha to class

Dear Castle Graduates of '67: A Chicago professor told his pupils that they were not really educated unless they could say "yes" to these qualities: "Have you learned how to make friends and keep them? Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself? Do you see anything to love in a little child? Will a lonely dog follow you down the street? Are you good for anything, yourself? Can you be happy alone? Can you look into a mud puddle and see anything but mud? Can you look out on the world and see any-thing but dollars and cents?"

The following is illustrative of men who were not really educated: "In 1923 a group of the world's most successful financiers met at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago. Present were: The president of the largest independent steel company, the president of the largest utility company, the greatest wheat speculator, the president of the New York Stock Exchange, a member of the president's cabinet, the greatest bear in Wall Street, the president of the Bank of International Settlements, and the head of the world's greatest monopoly.

Collectively, these tycoons controlled more wealth than there was in the U.S. Treasury and for years newspapers and magazines had been printing their success stories and urging the youth of the nation to follow their examples. Twenty five years later, let's see what happened to these men The president of the largest independent steel company--Charles Schwab lived on borrowed money the last five Pledge of Allegiance led by our Valedictorian Laura Ajifu. The audience was then welcomed by our president, Charlene DeMello. Following that our guest speaker, Congresswoman Patsy Mink, was introduced.

After her speech the class sang their class song, "For All We Know." The presentation of scholarships followed.

The Class of 1967 was then presented by the acting principal, Mr. Shigeo Kobashigawa. Diplomas were presented by Mr. Ralph Ajifu, representative from the eighth district.

Eloise Kuloloia led the class in the Alma Mater, which was followed by a final prayer given by Reverend Colson. The class then exited by the Grand March.

Baccalaureate is held on June4

On June 4, the Baccalaureatte was held at the Hawaiian Memorial Chapel.

The program began with Ricky Burkard giving the meaning of Baccalaureatte. He was followed by Dr. Seifert who spoke to us on the life we are about to enter. Following him was another participation by a student, Diane Ortiz. After that the whole group participated in a song, "Blowin' in the Wind". The next speaker spoke to us on the world outside our school. The service was ended with a poem read by Sandy Tanaka.

To Michelle Hettema goes the thanks for this activity.

The greatest wheat speculator--Arthur Cutten died abroad, insolvent.

The president of the New York Stock Exchange--Richard Whitney served time in Sing Sing. All of these men had learned

All of these men had learned how to make money, but not one of them had learned how to live. It is our earnest hope that Castle has helped in educating the graduates of 1967 for living.

Best wishes, Allan B. Lehman Senior Counselor

Is she typical of today?

"Are you biased in regards to teen-agers?" asked an attractive Miss silhouetted in the doorway of my classroom.

"Of course and absolutely not", I replied. "But come in before the draft gets to you, that mini doesn't appear to be very adaptable to any sudden changes in the environment."

"Well what is your opinion of us?" insisted my youthful inquisitor, easing herself cautiously into what she considered the primeval dwelling of Homo dubious.

She looked so young and defenseless that I decided to use my 'Red Riding Hood' approach. (Not wolf's) I would share with her some of my unbiased opinions about 'terrible teenager' crystallized over some fifty years of relationships close and remote.

"Do you smoke?" I popped suddenly. The idea was catch her off guard and her confusion would be answer enough. The idea was to "No I don't," she answered demurely.

"Good," I approved with a smile that blessed. But I was a bit ruffled on the inside. If my memory serves me right, I started to investigate the weed at the age of eleven or perhaps a few years earlier. 'Oh well' I rationalized, 'this youngster is a slow starter and probably not a standard sample.'

"How often do you take off on a binge?" This direct personal confrontation of I and Thou ought to rattle some of her self assurance.

"What's that?" Genuine ignorance spoke.

"Hold it! Hold everything! You don't know what a binge is? How about--Snootfull? Go for broke? Wela ka hau? Let the hair down? Wack em?"

My mental image of the teen-ager wasn't holding up--wasn't taking form in accord with the avante garde socialist -- those well informed savants who assure us that the adolescent of today has already compromised his moral integrity by the time he has learned to differentiate between 'yes' and 'no'. And dramatically conclude that by the time she or he has reached the age of legal consent, is suffering from the indifference of strophic moral senility. This state arises as the result of sharply separated generations-developed by technology barriers -that preclude all communication. In short, we live in different worlds. The one thing we share in common is the Damocles' Electric Push Button. The awareness of the potential 'Big Boom!" One age developed it and all others will inherit it. The resulting anxiety and despair is reduced through sundry maladjustments. Thus escapism is the norm and responsibi-lity the aberrant. L.S.D., narcotics, alcohol, sexual perversion, barbituates, pornagraphy and suicide the responses that vie with such phenomina as purpose, responsibility, respect, search for truth that leads towards fulfillment, a sense of dignity and the recognition that to be human demands decision. I would try once more. "Do you believe in free love?"

I had hit my teen-ager with a smack-a-roo, a real controversial curmudgeon. This bit of moral casuistry had left many in my generation in water over their heads.

The wrinkle in her brow developed from zero to the suggestion of one. "When you use the word 'love', are you thinking of love with responsibility or love without responsibility because I think that love without, is not love at all. If love is action of the highest quality of which man is capable, then freedom for love is expressed in a relationship of concern for others which is quite the reverse of freedom from responsibility. Is it freedom FOR or freedom FROM? Please tell me what you mean by 'free love'."

Well shut my big mouth! This kooky teen-ager is exposing If I say anymore she'll begin to realize that as an aume! thority on teen-age behavior I'm not only incompetent but a. fraud as well. The judgement sitters are beyond me. As a per-son I have no absolutes for evaluating another person--except one perhaps.

I can accept you only as I accept myself, as a per-MORAL: son. And I can only love you--everyone.

I Lifted My Head

I lifted my head and I saw Beauty being shadowed by war, hate, and lust. I lifted my head and I saw Love being shadowed by Anger, sorrow, pain, and sadness.

I put down my head

Took the pen in my hand Brought out the pieces of paper

And took away the shadows And wrote of the beauty and love.

Hard work, tough jobs, and no pay for our leaders

Throughout this year of tough jobs, hard work, and no pay, our senior class has been led by a group of hard-working and dedicated seniors.

These, who have been des-cribed, believe it or not, are our senior class officers. And here and now we wish to lay all of the victories and defeats of the past year at their feet.

Most of you know them and either have had the pleasure (?) to work with them or have enjoyed (?) the fruits of their labor. They are: pres-ident, Charlene DeMello; vicepresident, Dennis Kaneshiro; secretary, Linda Lau; and treasurer, Edward Hopkins.

To them we owe the joy of this our last, and to them we owe the fun of all our activities.

But not all the honor may be heaped on the heads of these deserving (?) few. Some of the credit also goes to the hardworking committee chairmen These are: class dance, Kunio Hasebe; talent assembly, Sarah Kihoi; class week, Richard Yamada; picnic, Dennis Kaneshiro; luau, Laura Ajifu; prom, Sandra Nakazaki; Baccalaureate, Michelle Hettema; and graduation, Linda Terauchi

And behind these people are all the hardworking committee members who have given up their time and effort to help and make our senior year an enjoyable one.

To them the senior class sends a great big

MAHALO!

New prexy send aloha to Seníors

On behalf of the student body of Castle High School, I extend our warmest and sincerest best wishes to you, the mighty seniors, in whatever you endeavor to undertake in the coming years. In these past years you have encountered and solved many difficult problems which you should be proud of having done so admirably, for Your wise decisions have elevated the name of Castle from the depths of mediocrity to a place of accomplishment. May you always use your knowledge and wisdom discreetly to achieve goals which you set for yourselves. Again may I extend our warmest Aloha and congratulations from the bottom of our hearts.

Sincerely yours,

Paul Tam President-Elect

DeMello wishes luck to graduating class Seniors:

when you were younger did you look forward to the day when you would be graduating and would no longer have to go to school? I know I did. Well, June 10th, the day we graduate is fast approaching but in many instances, it has ceased to signifu the end of our education.

This education is more than the acquisition of knowledge. As Charles R. Keller said, "Education can really be discovery, and among the things that students discover are themselves." We have discovered not only ourselves but others also and we have made many friends in the past four years that we have been here at Castle. "For all we know. we may never meet again," but there are many more people to meet and much more to learn in the future.

Best wishes to all the MIGHTY SENIORS in the continuation of your education!! Aloha,

Charlene DeMello Senior Class President

Dulaney's hold prom pointers assembly By Naomi Hakkei

On March 30, the senior class prom committee held an assembly for the juniors and seniors attending the Jr.-Sr. prom.

A panel presented their opinions on how they would handle specific incidents. The cafeteria nearly shattered from laughter as Elliot Dela Cruz tried to invite Diane Teshima to the prom. Gals, what would you do if your date forgot to open the car door for you? Well, Naomi Hakkei said that she'd honk the horn (really?) Lionel Brandt said that the girl he invites needn't be a dream girl or someone who he could be proud with but who would be enjoyable company. Other points discussed were expenses, places to dine and procedures from the invitations to the thank you notes

Leslie Young headed the decorations and arrangements committee. The other committee chairmen were as follows: Naomi Hakkei, panel and models; Linda Lau, pamphlet; and Sandra Nakazaki, questions and Junior class. Leslie Yamamoto, Corrine Yokote, Clyde Higa, Wayne Kozuma, Diane Teshima, Joyce Matsumoto, and Libby Orallo. March 4

Following that came the exciting Senior Picnic. It was held at Ala Moana Beach Park. With Dennis Kaneshiro working hard at the head of the committee, they planned out a beautiful picnic which we all remember.

YOUTHS WANT DRAFT LAW ABOLISHED

Gee gads! What a laugh! The U.S. is democratic, huh? That's full of baloney. This stupid draft law sounds more like Communism to me. Why do we have to go? Of course that John "Brains" Jenkins won't have to go for a while. He gets a draft deferment just because he's going to college. At the rate he's going, aiming for a doctorate degree and everything, by the time he's ready to enter the service. he'll be an old man. Boy! What luck. Oh, oh. Mom's just come home. I better tell her I got this draft notice. Well--here goes my job, my gang. America--free? Are you kidding?

THOUGHTS BY L.E.

With graduation and baccalaureate so close did you ever stop to think waht lies behind you? Behind most of us is six Behind most of us is six years at Castle High School. We all arrived on that first day in the seventh grade completely ready to be ground into the ground by the upper classmen. Everyone remembers how it was back then!

how it was back then! That first year was hectic! Getting to know the campus, the teachers, the school.

Then we were eighth graders. Boy what a relief to get into the upper ranks and no longer be the last on the list.

Then came the nineth grade. At last, we had reahced the high schook bracket. We were freshmen! Could anyone have ever been as noisy and nonattentive as us? We were all set to invade the world of the upper classmen with intelligence (?) and foresight (?).

Following that we became the Swingin' Sophmores. That was the year that the school realized that we were there.

Tnen of course, we reached the upper brackets and were advusor (?) we really showed the school that we were still alive (?). Then, we had finally reached the ultimate, highest, most perfect place in the world. We were the Superior Seniors.

was. What with Mr.

Our year was filled with fun activities, easy (?) classes, and groovy teachers! And now the time has come to go so with the final word I will leave you to your memories Aloha, L.E.

Senior Editi

Last Will and Testament

I, Laurel Steadman, bequeath to Alvin Moratin, Class of '68 the left shoe lace off my right tennis shoe.

I, Yvonne Omiya, leave my initials on the cement pavement in front of room 39.

I, Stella Ishii, give my last chewable tooth to my pet raccoon.

I, Steve Hunter, leave my parking spot under the tree in the teacher's parking lotwhere once stood the BLUE TOAD

I, Alvin Preston, bequeath to all underclassmen who have to continue school, I leave my deepest, heartfelt sympathy.

I, Corrinne Yokote, bequeath my superb musical talents to Charlie Wong.

I, Nani Murray, bequeath my smile to all the juniors of Castle. Remember always to smile.

I, Lee swearingen, do bequeath my Swedish blood to Mr. Kuha, in hopes he may always deem worthy of it, and my black turtle-neck sweater to Ervin Cablayan, to cover up any future birth marks he may acquire. I, Clayton Akima, bequeath the rest of my generously given intelligence to Roen McDonald so that she may still remain in the N.H.S. next year (I doubt it!) But as an actor to a rat--good luck--cause you'll need it!

I, Neil Honda, leave to Castle all the hardships and bad memories I had here, and I'll take all the good thoughts with me.

I, Vickie Lee Kwai, will my terrific acting ability to Douglass Reynolds who really needs it.

I, Stephanie Ishikawa, leave my brilliant brains and personality to my handsome(??) brother.

I, Glenn Iwane, leave my lazy body and useless brains to the rubbish cans in the back of the cafeteria.

I, Wendy Silva, leave my beauty and figure to Mary Caldeira, for she needs it more than I.

I, Ella Kuloloia, leave all my fat to all the students of CHS who are undernourished; I also leave my beautiful personality. I, Patti Sinclair, leave my pink floppy hat and my Conrad Birdie scream to my sister Peggy. And my sexy yellow night-gown to Mr. B. so he can be as sexy as I am.

I, Mike Daul, will all my talents for fighting and arguing to Allen Sutterfield in hopes that he carries on the M&M teams tradition.

I, Mark Dawson, will my wonderful acting ability and my VW to Greg, my brother, I also leave my way with women to Douglass Reynolds.

I, Leslie Yamamoto, leave to Roy Izaki my four bat wings.

Security of comfort

Security is a good, warm feeling inside of you that comes and goes with little incident's. Sometimes, it is very unstable and may be lost as fast as it is gained. For example, you may wake up one cold morning, find it is rainy and dark outside, and then realize how warm and cozy your bed is. This is security. The next moment there's a knock on your door, signaling that you must get up. This is shattered security.

Security is also a feeling of safety and confidence. This kind of security is acquired by things like money in your purse, run-proof nylons . and not being alone on a dark night. Knowing that everything is secure and in its place, you cannot but help to feel warm and comfortable in your place.

No leaf stirs, never in the depths of silence.

Only the sound of the rain and the quick beat of the wind rattling the heat waves, and the leafless flowers who welcome the rain and wind that bring life to the heated land to moisten and dampen its (soil).

And after the rain comes the fresh smell of flowers and the damp, moist mud which profuses a scent to tell of its age and condition.

There are only a few word: in our language that can thoroughly describe justice. Yet each individual may have a different meaning within himself. To some people, justice is death even before a convicted person is proven guilty, and to others it means a fair trial. To the innocent it may mean time saved and a little hope; a chance that he may go free. Justice means punishment to those who break the laws of our society, and it also means the honest judgement and fulfillment of the rights we all have.

People have many different meanings of justice; some that can lead an innocent person to death, and can convict the sonscience of those who prosecute the innocent unjustly. Justice is important in the world and is a main practice of our laws today. Thousands of crimes are being committed each day which involves the fair judgement of people who are chosen to prosecute or find innocent the convicted. Today, each person convicted of crime is given a fair trial and a chance to prove his innocence. We no longer have mobs in anger who hang men for the crimes they've committed. Many men before our time died without a fair trial or a chance to prove their innocence. We are lucky that we have justice today, that it's part of our law and need never be questioned. We should be proud of all the men who fought and died to make justice a part of our constitu-tion and a part of our everyday lives.
